Pfizer Doc Dump (March 2023): rats died, had increased fibrinogen, kidney and liver issues

Latest Pfizer Document Dump:

[\[link to icandecide.org_\(secure\)\]](#)

2,237pp report: [\[link to icandecide.org_\(secure\)\]](#)

"Two rats did die during the study (about 1% of those injected with vaccine)"

"The following issues in major organs groups were observed:

*Enlarged spleens
Enlarged adrenal glands
Enlarged lymph nodes
Kidney and liver congestion
Increased fibrinogen concentration"*

"All of these issues clearly show effects beyond the injection site."

"Of particular concern is the increased fibrinogen concentration; fibrinogen is made in your liver and helps your blood clot."

*"Increased fibrinogen is associated with blood clotting, heart disease, blood vessel dysfunction, and stroke."
[and amyloidosis..read on..]*

"These issues were also seen with the dose level that was eventually licensed."

Re: Pfizer Doc Dump (March 2023): rats died, had increased fibrinogen, kidney and liver issues

NOTE ALSO ON FIBRINOGEN (Amyloid-Beta is associated with Alzheimer's Disease):

[\[link to www.pnas.org_\(secure\)\]](#)

"Importantly, Amyloid-Beta does not act alone, but rather it exerts pathophysiological effects by forming complexes with the blood-clotting protein fibrinogen"

"The hypothesis that Amyloid-Beta and fibrinogen form a pathological nexus extends back to the first observations that fibrin(ogen) accumulates and colocalizes with Amyloid-Beta plaques as observed in postmortem brain tissues of AD patients"

"The basis of the mechanism linking Amyloid-Beta and fibrinogen to CAA and AD pathology is the finding that these two proteins directly interact" (6)

Paper below: They looked at white blood cell infiltration of tissues, and how amyloid appears to be the body's defence against infiltration.

Note that in MANY of Arne Burkhardt's spike-death autopsy slides, there is extensive immune infiltration to deal with cells producing spike all over the body. Think, for example, White Blood Cells in the heart.... (making the result 'Cardiac Amyloidosis').

Amyloids in Site-Specific Autoimmune Reactions and Inflammatory Responses

"The meningoencephalitis is autoimmune-related due to autoreactive CD4+T cells infiltrating after autopsy examination."

"More intriguingly, injection of Amyloid-Beta peptide into experimental autoimmune encephalomyelitis (EAE) delays disease onset;"

"conversely, EAE gets worse following genetic deletion of the amyloid precursor protein (APP)."

"Other amyloid-forming proteins consistently exhibit such therapeutic outcome with highly immune suppressive activity."

"Such improvement in EAE conferred by A β treatment, to some extent, indicates the potential protective role of amyloid in defending against autoimmunity."

Re: Pfizer Doc Dump (March 2023): rats died, had increased fibrinogen, kidney and liver issues

My mother took the damn shot. I don't know how many but she said last one was over a year ago and won't take anymore.

1) she still caught Covid several months ago and took her 3 weeks to test negative

2) she was diagnosed with a rare blood cancer last week. Guess what it does? Makes your blood really thick.

She's a 3 time cancer survivor. All this talk early on from oncologists stating cancer rates had increased had me worried. Back when it was available I tried to talk her out of it. She wouldn't hear of it (watches CNN all day). Said she didn't care what was in it she was taking it (I tried to tell her about the odd stuff, synthesized from fetal cell line and experimental).

Now she has cancer again and it's not curable only treatable. She only has one kidney so her blood was already on the thicker side.

I'm suffering at this very moment with my second bout of Covid. Don't give a shit. Still glad I didn't take the frankenshot. It doesn't make you immune and look at all the harm the shit is doing to a lot of people. I wish my mom would have listened to me.

I added a few of my comments.

Basically, the ONS has shamed itself with their latest releases.

Their tables we waited 7mo for were missing some data, had other data copy-pasta'd wrongly, and shows unmistakeable forensic signs of being fraudulent..

F the ONS!

(Nobody beleieves them anyway!)

Reminder: Tomorrow's the day...

Are we ready for the ONS "magic signal adjustment fudge-fest" that's about to be released?

[\[link to www.ons.gov.uk \(secure\)\]](#)

..if.. If.. IF.. they release the age-based populations and deaths by vax status, we might be able to do something.

BUT I think they will only release 'person years' and adjusted mortality rates.

Let's see what we get.

Quoting: S-man

Deaths in unvaccinated group are wildly increased (up to 40%!!!) in the new report.

e.g. unvaxxed deaths all-cause in May2022. Old report:1,017 vs. new report 1,443

Old report:

[\[link to www.ons.gov.uk \(secure\)\]](#)

Deaths occurring between 1 January 2021 and 31 May 2022 edition of this dataset

Table 1, Row 149: All-Cause Deaths for May 2022 'Unvaccinated': 1,017.

New Report:

[\[link to www.ons.gov.uk \(secure\)\]](#)

Deaths occurring between 1 April 2021 and 31 December 2022 edition of this dataset

Table 1, Row 122: All-Cause Deaths for May 2022 (SAME MONTH AS ABOVE) 'Unvaccinated': 1,443

HAHA... they gots some 'splainin to do. It is beginning to look like outright fraud, to me!

18-39y All-cause unvax deaths May2022 (Old report [\[link to www.ons.gov.uk \(secure\)\]](#) Table 2, row 789):

26 died.

18-39y All-cause unvax deaths May2022 (New report [\[link to www.ons.gov.uk \(secure\)\]](#) Table 2, row 642):

87 died.

Now, this, to my mind, is the kind of change that just can't be a bit of miscounting here or there..

You don't just find 61 'extra' dead 18-39 year olds in the month of May, for the new report (on a baseline of 26).

Quoting: S-man

Right, here's a quick bit of "forensic accounting", something I am no expert at.

The histogram below shows data from the SAME Months, Years and Ages, for individual months and individual age-groups.

-> but from BOTH the ONS reports (today's, and the one prior).

-> Remember: IT IS FOR THE SAME MONTHS, YEARS, AND AGES!

-> There are 42 'results' in total, 7 age-groups x 6 months of overlapping data.

-> I am looking ONLY at the period of overlap of the two reports, to see what changed.

-> Ideally you would expect no changes in the number of deaths between the two reports in the overlapping periods of time and ages:- I mean, a dead body is a dead body, and we can count, right?

As per the above posts, I was surprised to see there are in fact changes in the number of deaths, for those same exact time-periods and ages.

-> I can't think of a reasonable explanation why 25k more deaths are recorded in the new report compared to the old report for the same time-period, apart from perhaps getting a bigger part of the population included - e.g. 'We included patients not registered with a GP in the new report' .. but I can't see anything like that written anywhere.

On top of the unexpected changes between the two reports, the changes themselves are NOT pro-rata distributed between Unvax and Vax

->The definitions of 'Unvaccinated' etc. in the 'definitions' tab are the same for both spreadsheets, as per JAZZ's suggestion.

So, I have simply subtracted the %upswing in the Unvaxxed deaths from the %upswing in Vaxxed deaths for the same exact ages and dates.

Notwithstanding all of the above, one might expect the distribution to be tight, and centered around zero.

i.e. sometimes Unvaxxed goes up more than Vaxxed, sometimes vice-versa. Little omissions of data here and there, things the ONS picked up in the year they had to tidy it all..

Alas, no....

I think they are busted.

Nothing I can think of could account for a doubling of Unvax deaths relative to Vax deaths in an age-group and month.

It happened, in May 2022 for the 18-39yo group, between the two reports.

There is an overall shift of the mean from the expected Zero, to about +10%.

NOTE ALSO ON FIBRINOGEN (Amyloid-Beta is associated with Alzheimer's Disease):

[\[link to www.pnas.org\(secure\)\]](https://www.pnas.org(secure))

"Importantly, Amyloid-Beta does not act alone, but rather it exerts pathophysiological effects by forming complexes with the blood-clotting protein fibrinogen"

"The hypothesis that Amyloid-Beta and fibrinogen form a pathological nexus extends back to the first observations that fibrin(ogen) accumulates and colocalizes with Amyloid-Beta plaques as observed in postmortem brain tissues of AD patients"

"The basis of the mechanism linking Amyloid-Beta and fibrinogen to CAA and AD pathology is the finding that these two proteins directly interact" (6)

My mother took the damn shot. I don't know how many but she said last one was over a year ago and won't take anymore.

1) she still caught Covid several months ago and took her 3 weeks to test negative

2) she was diagnosed with a rare blood cancer last week. Guess what it does? Makes your blood really thick.

She's a 3 time cancer survivor. All this talk early on from oncologists stating cancer rates had increased had me worried. Back when it was available I tried to talk her out of it. She wouldn't hear of it (watches CNN all day). Said she didn't care what was in it she was taking it (I tried to tell her about the odd stuff, synthesized from fetal cell line and experimental).

Now she has cancer again and it's not curable only treatable. She only has one kidney so her blood was already on the thicker side.

I'm suffering at this very moment with my second bout of Covid. Don't give a shit. Still glad I didnt take the frankenshot. It doesn't make you immune and look at all the harm the shit is doing to a lot of people. I wish my mom would have listened to me.

Does this mean that the amyloid plaque we see in the brains of Alzheimer's patients is actually the body's response to what it perceives as some sort of autoimmune attack on the brain?

In other words:

1) something triggers the body's immune system to attack its own brain

2) and then the body creates the amyloid plaque as a defense against that autoimmune attack

If that's true, then Alzheimer's research needs to pivot and focus on figuring out what causes the initial autoimmune attack.

(Why do i feel like tptb already know the answers to all of this? Sort of like how the British Crown knew full well what caused scurvy but withheld that knowledge from the world for 100 years in order to have a competitive advantage on the seas)

Re: Pfizer Doc Dump (March 2023): rats died, had increased fibrinogen, kidney and liver issues

I will just mention this one more time. I live with 3x vax two people. I started having liver issues after they received their 2nd shot. My liver became enlarged my enzymes increased my bile duct also was enlarged. No known reason. Not non alcoholic fatty liver disease or alcoholic fatty liver, not diabetes, no known cause. I cannot prove the shot did this but it's totally suspect. They stopped getting shots after their 3rd last December.

This summer I was able to help my liver recover and get back to normal. It was after their 3rd shot that my liver went to it's worst. I truly believe there is something to this being near the vaccinated thing. The thing is I didn't know they had even gotten that 3rd shot until summer and it was after that one in December that I was in the ER with pain in my right side in January.
